

1
2
3
4
5
6 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
7 AT TACOMA

8 MELISSA BELGAU, DONNA BYBEE,
9 RICHARD OSTRANDER, KATHRINE
NEWMAN, MIRIAN TORRES, GARY
HONC, and MICHAEL STONE,

10 Plaintiffs,

11 v.

12 JAY INSLEE, in his official capacity as governor of the State of Washington, 13 DAVID SCHUMACHER, in his official capacity as Director of the Washington
Office of Financial Management, JOHN 14 WEISMAN, in his official capacity as Director of the Washington Department of 15 Health, CHERYL STRANGE, in her official capacity as Director of the 16 Washington Department of Social and Health Services, ROGER MILLAR, in his 17 official capacity as Director of the Washington Department of Transportation, 18 JOEL SACKS, in his official capacity as Director of the Washington Department of
19 Labor and Industries, and WASHINGTON
FEDERATION OF STATE EMPLOYEES
20 (AFSCME, COUNSEL 28) a labor corporation,

21 Defendants.
22
23
24

CASE NO. 18-5620 RJB

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFFS'
MOTION FOR A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

1 THIS MATTER comes before the Court on the Plaintiffs’ Motion for Preliminary 2 Injunction. Dkt. 33. The Court has considered the pleadings filed regarding the motion and the 3 remaining file.

4 Plaintiffs, who are Washington State employees, filed this putative class action on August 5 2, 2018, asserting that the Defendants are violating their first amendment rights by continuing to 6 deduct union dues/fees from their wages even “after the U.S. Supreme Court issued Janus v.
7 AFSCME, Council 31, on June 27, 2018, despite the fact that Plaintiffs have not clearly and 8 affirmatively consented to the deductions by waiving the constitutional right to not fund union 9 advocacy.” Dkt. 1 (citing Janus v. AFSCME, Council 31, 138 S.Ct. 2448 (2018)).

10 Plaintiffs now move for a preliminary injunction for an order enjoining the continued 11 deduction of union fees from their wages. Dkt. 33. Defendants respond and oppose the motion 12 (Dkt. 34) and Plaintiffs filed a reply (Dkt. 35).

13 For the reasons provided below, the Plaintiff’s Motion for a Preliminary Injunction (Dkt.
14 33) should be denied. Plaintiffs have failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits
15 or that there are serious questions going to the merits, failed to show a likelihood of irreparable 16 harm, and failed to demonstrate that the balance of equities and the public interest favor a 17 preliminary injunction.

18 I. FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

19 A. BACKGROUND FACTS

20 The State of Washington and the Washington Federation of State Employees AFSCME
21 Council 28 (“Union”) entered an exclusive collective bargaining agreement for the years 2017-22 2019 (“CBA”). Dkt. 1. On June 27, 2018, the United States Supreme Court decided Janus v.
23 AFSCME, Council 31. 138 S. Ct. 2448, 2486 (2018). The Plaintiffs allege that the State and the 24

1 Union entered into a Memorandum of Understanding on July 6, 2018, and amended the CBA to 2 stop collection of compulsory agency fees for non-union members. Dkt. 1 (citing the CBA
3 found at https://ofm.wa.gov/sites/default/files/public/legacy/labor/agreements/17-
4 19/wfse_gg.pdf). As amended in July of 2018, § 40.2 of the CBA provides:

5 The Employer agrees to deduct an amount equal to the membership dues from the 6 salary of employees who request such deduction in writing within thirty (30) days
7 of receipt of a properly completed request submitted to the appropriate agency
8 payroll office. Such requests will be made on a Union payroll deduction 9 authorization card. The Employer will honor the terms and conditions of each 10 employee's signed membership card.

11 Id. Under § 40.3, the CBA states that “upon receipt of the employee’s written authorization, the 12 Employer [the State of Washington here] will deduct from the employee’s salary an amount 13 equal to the dues required to be a member of the Union.” Id. In § 40.6, the CBA further 14 provides that “[a]n employee may revoke his or her authorization for payroll deduction of 15 payments to the Union by written notice to the Employer and the Union in accordance with the 16 terms and conditions of their signed membership card.” Id.

17 Moreover, the State is obligated by statute to enforce the CBA by “deducting from the 18 payments to bargaining unit members the dues required for membership in the [Union].” RCW § 19 41.80.100.

20 The Union represents more than 40,000 Washington State employees; over 36,000 are 21 dues paying members. Dkt. 34-1, at 2. Each of the seven Plaintiffs became Union members 22 before July 2017. Dkt. 34-1, at 8-26.

23 In July 2017, the Union decided to begin using a new membership agreement which 24 included a one-year dues payment commitment. Dkt. 34-1, at 3. Members of the Union were not required to sign the new membership agreement. Dkt. 34-1, at 3. The new membership

1 agreement, entitled “Payroll Deduction Authorization & Maintenance of Membership Card,” 2 provided, in part:

3 Yes! I stand united with my fellow State employees . . . 100% Union . . .

4 Yes! I want to be a union member. . .

5 Effective immediately, I hereby voluntarily authorize and direct my 6 Employer to deduct from my pay each period, the amount of dues as set in 7 accordance with the [Union] Constitution and By-Laws and authorize my 8 Employer to remit such amount semi-monthly to the Union (currently 1.5% of my 9 salary per pay period not to exceed the maximum). This voluntary authorization 10 and assignment shall be irrevocable for a period of one year from the date of 11 execution or until the termination date of the collective bargaining agreement (if 12 there is one) between the Employer and the Union, whichever occurs sooner, and 13 for year to year thereafter unless I give the Employer and the Union written notice 14 of revocation not less than ten (10) days and not more than twenty (20) days before the end of any yearly period, regardless of whether I am or remain a member of the Union, unless I am no longer in active pay status in a [Union] bargaining unit; provided however, if the applicable collective-bargaining agreement specifies a longer or different revocation period, then only that period shall apply. This card supersedes any prior check-off authorization card I signed.
I recognize that my authorization of dues deductions, and the continuation of such authorization from one year to the next, is voluntary and not a condition of my employment.

15 Dkt. 34-1, at 28, 30, 32, 34, 37, 39 and 42. Each of the Plaintiffs signed the new membership
16 agreement: Plaintiff Belgau on November 2, 2017; Plaintiff Ostrander on November 2, 2018;
17 Plaintiff Bybee on November 7, 2017; Plaintiff Stone on March 6, 2018; Plaintiff Newman on 18 March 21, 2018; Plaintiff Hone on April 14, 2018; and Plaintiff Torres on April 16, 2018. Id.
19 Each were afforded the opportunity to opt-out of Union membership, but did not choose to do so.
20 Id.

21 The Union asserts that by having year-long commitments from members it is able to 22 financially plan for benefits and budget for staff, facilities, and other expenses. Dkt. 34-1, at 3.
23 The Union offers certain benefits exclusively to its members including: the right to vote for 24 Union officers, run for office, participate in Union internal affairs, discounts on home mortgages,

1 mobile phone plans and other goods and services, access to scholarship programs, access to legal 2 advice, dental benefits, disaster/hardship relief grants, and social events. Dkt. 34-1, at 4 and 44-3 45.

4 After the June 27, 2018 Janus decision, each of the Plaintiffs notified the Union and the 5 State that they no longer wanted to be Union members. Dkts. 33-3 – 3-7. The State has 6 continued to deduct dues from their pay checks. Id.

7 The Union states that it “will instruct the State to end dues deductions for each Plaintiff 8 on [the one year anniversary of the signing of their membership agreement], regardless of 9 whether or not the Plaintiff[s] make[] another request to end the deductions.” Dkt. 34-1, at 5. It 10 also indicates that “[o]n August 14, 2018, [the Union] deposited into a separate interest-bearing 11 escrow account all dues that [the Union] had received as of that date from each Plaintiff after the 12 date of each Plaintiff’s request to resign from Union membership,” and will continue to do so 13 until the Plaintiffs’ dues deductions end on the one year anniversary of Plaintiffs’ signing of their 14 membership cards. Dkt. 34-1, at 5. The Union further states that it will keep these dues in a 15 separate interest bearing escrow account until this case is resolved, and will not use the dues to 16 pay for any union activities. Dkt. 34-1, at 5.

17 B. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

18 On August 2, 2018, the Plaintiffs filed this putative class action (1) challenging the 19 constitutionality of RCW 41.80.100 and the CBA provisions related to the deduction of 20 membership fees, as a violation of their First Amendment rights, (2) asserting that the 21 Defendants conspired to violate their constitutional rights, and (3) claiming that the Union was 22 unjustly enriched. Dkt. 1. The Plaintiffs seek declaratory and injunctive relief as well as 23 monetary damages, costs and attorneys’ fees. Id.

1 The same day Plaintiffs filed their complaint, they filed a motion seeking a temporary 2 restraining order “enjoining Defendants from deducting union dues/fees from the wages of any 3 Washington State employee in a bargaining unit listed in Appendix A to the 2017-2019
4 [Collective Bargaining Agreement (“CBA”)] for whom Defendants cannot provide clear and 5 compelling evidence that he or she clearly and affirmatively consented, on or after June 27, 6 2018, to the deduction of union dues by waiving his or her right to not fund union advocacy, and 7 from preventing Plaintiffs and state employees from resigning union membership.” Dkt. 2, at 2.

8 On August 8, 2018, Plaintiffs’ motion for a temporary restraining order was denied 9 without prejudice because the Plaintiffs failed to demonstrate irreparable harm. Dkt. 11. That 10 Order provided, in part,

11 The Defendants state in their response that the union has agreed to place the 12 Plaintiffs’ dues/fees in escrow in an interest-bearing account until this lawsuit is 13 decided. Dkt. 10-1. The Plaintiffs’ money will not be used by the Union in any 14 manner until the case is decided. Id. The Plaintiffs have failed to demonstrate that 15 they are “likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief.”
16 Moreover, under Fed. R. Civ. P. 65 (c), “the court may issue a preliminary 17 injunction only if the movant gives security in an amount that the court considers 18 proper.” Plaintiffs state that they cannot afford to post a security. Dkt. 2. The 19 Defendants’ offer to hold the money at issue in escrow provides a good resolution 20 for Rule 65 (c)’s requirements.

21 Dkt. 11, at 4.

22 C. PENDING MOTION

23 Plaintiffs renew their motion to preliminarily enjoin the State from continuing to collect 24 Union membership dues because they have now resigned from the Union. Dkt. 33. Plaintiffs argue that they are (1) likely to succeed on the merits because Union fee deductions from their wages violates their First Amendment rights and Defendants cannot show that they waived their rights, (2) continued dues deduction causes irreparable harm to Plaintiffs and escrowing

1 Plaintiffs' money is insufficient, (3) the balance of hardships tips heavily in their favor and (4) an 2 injunction is in the public interest. Id.

3 Defendants oppose the motion, and argue that: (1) the Plaintiffs have no likelihood of 4 success on the merits because the membership cards they signed constitute binding contracts to 5 pay dues for one year, the First Amendment does not provide them with a right to breach their 6 voluntary contractual obligations, Janus does not apply, and Plaintiffs' proposed standard would 7 itself violate the First Amendment, (2) the Plaintiffs again fail to show irreparable harm because 8 escrowing the money until this case is resolved is adequate, (3) the balance of equities does not 9 favor relief, and (4) the public interest does not favor preliminary relief. Dkt. 34.

10 Plaintiffs reply and assert that each of the Winter factors demonstrate that they are 11 entitled to preliminary relief, particularly that they will suffer irreparable harm absent relief and 12 are likely to succeed on the merits. Dkt. 35.

13 II. DISCUSSION

14 A. STANDARD FOR A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

15 Plaintiffs seeking a preliminary injunction must establish one of two tests. All. for the 16 Wild Rockies v. Pena, 865 F.3d 1211, 1217 (9th Cir. 2017). The first test requires Plaintiffs to 17 show: (1) that they are "likely to succeed on the merits," (2) that they are "likely to suffer 18 irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief," (3) "the balance of equities tips in [their] 19 favor," and (4) "an injunction is in the public interest." Coffman v. Queen of Valley Med. Ctr., 20 895 F.3d 717, 725 (9th Cir. 2018)(citing Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7 21 (2008) (internal quotation marks omitted)). Under the second variant of the 9th Circuit's test for 22 a preliminary injunction, the "sliding scale" version of the Winter standard provides that "if a 23 plaintiff can only show that there are serious questions going to the merits—a lesser showing 24

1 than likelihood of success on the merits—then a preliminary injunction may still issue if the 2 balance of hardships tips sharply in the plaintiff’s favor, and the other two Winter factors are 3 satisfied.” All. for the Wild Rockies, at 1217 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

4 B. APPLICATION OF THE WINTER TESTS

5 The Plaintiffs’ motion for preliminary injunction (Dkt. 33) should be denied. They have 6 failed to make an adequate showing under either of the Winter tests.

7 1. Success on the Merits or Serious Questions Going to the Merits

8 Based on the Plaintiffs’ current showing, they have failed to demonstrate a “likelihood of 9 success on the merits” or that there are “serious questions going to the merits.” They maintain 10 that the continued deduction of dues from their paychecks violates their First Amendment rights 11 under Janus. In Janus, the Supreme Court considered whether state employees, who were not 12 members of a state’s exclusive bargaining unit (union), could be required to pay the union 13 “agency fee,” which was supposed to represent costs associated with non-political union activity.

14 The Court held:

15 Neither an agency fee nor any other payment to the union may be deducted from a 16 nonmember’s wages, nor may any other attempt be made to collect such a 17 payment, unless the employee affirmatively consents to pay. By agreeing to pay, 18 nonmembers are waiving their First Amendment rights, and such a waiver cannot be presumed. Rather, to be effective, the waiver must be freely given and shown by “clear and compelling” evidence. Unless employees clearly and affirmatively consent before any money is taken from them, this standard cannot be met.

19 Janus, at 2486 (internal citations omitted). The Plaintiff in Janus was not a union member and 20 never agreed to be a union member.

21 Here, unlike in Janus, the Plaintiffs entered into a contract with the Union to be Union
22 members and agreed in that contract to pay Union dues for one year. “[T]he First Amendment
23 does not confer . . . a constitutional right to disregard promises that would otherwise be enforced

1 under state law.” Cohen v. Cowles Media Co., 501 U.S. 663, 672 (1991). A person has the right
2 to contract away their First Amendment protections. See Fisk v. Inslee, 2017 WL 4619223
3 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 16, 2017). Plaintiffs’ assertions that they didn’t knowingly give up their First 4 Amendment rights before Janus rings hollow. Janus says nothing about people join a Union, 5 agree to pay dues, and then later change their mind about paying union dues.

6 In Fisk v. Inslee, a court in this district considered whether people who joined a union and 7 signed an agreement to pay dues for a year (after sending a letter of objection and rescission of 8 support for the union) were entitled to an immediate cessation of deduction of their dues. 2017 9 WL 4619223 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 16, 2017). In concluding that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to 10 relief, the court held:

11 The freedom to contract is rooted in the due process clause of the Fifth and 12 Fourteenth Amendment. It is the bedrock upon which the economic engine 13 provides the goods and services necessary for a thriving society. A worker has 14 every right to voluntarily associate with a union in order to promote better 15 working conditions and wages. Correspondingly, a worker can refuse to associate 16 with or join a union. That is her prerogative. But, once she joins voluntarily, in 17 writing, she has the obligation to perform the terms of her agreement. The 18 freedom of speech and the freedom of association do not trump the obligations 19 and promises voluntarily and knowingly assumed. The other party to that contract 20 has every reason to depend on those promises for the purpose of planning and 21 budgeting resources. The Constitution says nothing affirmative about reneging 22 legal and lawful responsibilities freely undertaken.

23 Fisk v. Inslee, C16-5889RBL, 2017 WL 4619223, at *5 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 16, 2017). The Court 24 finds the reasoning in Fisk persuasive, even though the decision came out before Janus. Janus does not apply to Plaintiffs’ situation, as explained above. Plaintiffs’ arguments to the contrary are unpersuasive.

Plaintiffs assert that they were under duress when they signed the agreements at issue here. They fail to make an adequate showing of duress, particularly for the purposes of this

1 motion for preliminary injunction, where the issues of duress are fact specific and discovery has 2 only just begun.

3 The Plaintiffs have failed to establish that they are likely to succeed on the merits or that 4 there are serious questions going to the merits. They have failed to meet their first burden under 5 either the traditional Winter test or the “sliding scale” version of the Winter standard.

6 2. Irreparable Harm in the Absence of Preliminary Relief

7 The Plaintiffs have failed to show that they will suffer irreparable harm in the absence of 8 preliminary relief. As was true a few months ago, the Union states that it has, and will continue,
9 to escrow all dues in an interest bearing account until this litigation is resolved and will not use 10 the dues for any Union activity. Dkt. 34-1, at 5. It further agreed to “instruct the State to end 11 dues deductions for each Plaintiff on [the one year anniversary of the signing of their 12 membership agreement], regardless of whether or not the Plaintiff[s] make[] another request to 13 end the deductions.” Dkt. 34-1, at 5. Further, Plaintiffs do not indicate that they can now post 14 security. As stated in the August 8, 2018 Order Denying Plaintiffs’ Motion for TRO:

15 The Plaintiffs’ money will not be used by the Union in any manner until the case 16 is decided. The Plaintiffs have failed to demonstrate that they are “likely to suffer 17 irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief.” Moreover, under Fed. R.
18 Civ. P. 65 (c), “the court may issue a preliminary injunction only if the movant gives security in an amount that the court considers proper.” Plaintiffs state that they cannot afford to post a security. The Defendants’ offer to hold the money at issue in escrow provides a good resolution for Rule 65 (c)’s requirements.

19 Dkt. 11, at 4. The reasoning from the August 8, 2018 Order remains valid. Plaintiffs have failed 20 to demonstrate irreparable harm.

21 3. Balance of Equities and the Public Interest

22 Plaintiffs also fail to show that the balance of equities favors a preliminary injunction.
23 The Plaintiffs agreed to have dues retained from their paychecks for one year. The State
24

1 properly points out that by escrowing the disputed funds, the status quo is maintained. If the 2 deductions were halted, then the Union would likely not see the funds, particularly where the 3 Plaintiffs state that they do not have the funds to post a security. The balance of equities do not 4 favor an injunction at this time.

5 Further, Plaintiffs fail to show that the public interest favors preliminary relief. The 6 public has a strong interest in the enforcement of contracts. See Steele v. Drummond, 275 U.S.
7 199, 205 (1927)(“it is a matter of great public concern that freedom of contract be not lightly 8 interfered with”).

9 4. Conclusion

10 Plaintiffs’ Motion for a Temporary Restraining Order (Dkt. 33) should be denied. The 11 Plaintiffs have failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits or that there are serious 12 questions going to the merits, failed to show a likelihood of irreparable harm, and failed to 13 demonstrate that the balance of equities and the public interest favor a preliminary injunction.

14 III. ORDER

15 It is ORDERED that:

- 16 • Plaintiffs’ Motion for Preliminary Injunction (Dkt. 33) IS DENIED.

17 The Clerk is directed to send uncertified copies of this Order to all counsel of record and 18 to any party appearing pro se at said party’s last known address.

19 Dated this 11th day of October, 2018.

20

21 ROBERT J. BRYAN
22 United States District Judge
23
24